

Ulrich Chomche (NBA Academy Games) 7/5 – 8/2023 – Live

He has demonstrated the ability to step out and knock down a few three-pointers, adding a valuable dimension to his offensive game, though his shooting consistency needs improvement as some of his misses were erratic. His feel as a passer or ball handler was not his strongest suit, he did showcase the ability to execute straight-line using a nice rip-through/jab-step to get by a defender from the perimeter.

His versatility was impressive, capable of guarding positions 1-5. His ability to move his feet on the perimeter allows him to effectively defend guards and wings, while his length and strength enable him to compete on the interior. He was particularly impressive as a shot blocker, using his timing and an explosive second jump to alter shots effectively. However, he did have a tendency to fall for pump fakes.

His versatility and activity on both ends of the floor make him a valuable prospect but there are areas that need refinement. Offensively, improving his shooting consistency from three-point range will enhance his scoring threat. Defensively, he needs to work on maintaining discipline to avoid falling for pump fakes. Additionally, developing a better feel as a passer and ball handler will round out his game and increase his effectiveness.